February 1948

1. An airfield was observed from a distance west of the road to OREL (36°5' E/52°57' N), presumably on the western town border of TULA (37°37' E/54°12' N).
2. Eight twin-engine aircraft, similar to the German FW-58, took off almost daily from this airfield, from morning to night, at intervals of 30 minutes. Five men parachuted from each of the aircraft from an altitude of about 2,650 feet. Disassembled guns were also dropped with parachutes. The parachutists reassembled the guns on the ground and took up positions. Paratroopers and guns were trucked to the airfield. Night flying was seldom observed. *
3. An artillery officer candidate school equipped with 60 to 70 guns was observed south of TULA. A strikingly large number of 172-mm guns and of self-propelled AA guns, similar to German 88-mm AA guns, were seen on the road to OREL.

[REDACTED] confirmed frequent parachute jumps from twin-engine aircraft over an airfield near TULA in November 1947.

d. The aircraft type reportedly similar to the P-58 may have been the Yak-6 or an improved version of it (either the Yak-3 or the Yak-16). The regular training would indicate the existence of a parachute training center for regular parachute units. According to information of August 1946, a pilot school, a signal and a parachute school were located in TULA.
